Pestana Gramacho

Pestana Pinta

Gramacho The wonderful characteristics already existing on the site from the boulder outcrops and dry stone walling to the fig, carob and olive trees, have been complemented by artfully positioned lakes and bunkers. These hazards, combined with the design of the greens and fairways result in a challenging but attractive course. From the first stroke to the final green, you must adopt the best strategy to achieve optimum results.

Pinta The Pinta Course is one of the best-designed courses in Europe. The dogleg trajectory for all the par 4 and 5 holes emphasizes the need for skilful driving. The size of the greens is specifically matched to the length of the approach shot. It is certain to be appreciated by experienced golfers, for whom a round on this course will provide genuine excitement and a memorable and enjoyable days play.

Pestana Silves

Pestana Alto

Silves A serene spot, but the course is anything but the proverbial walk in the park. Target golf reigns supreme. A drive at the opening hole has to flirt with two water hazards on both flanks. A heroic and straight shot will reward the player with an easy uphill approach shot. Silves encourages and rewards attacking play. It has a natural beauty and an elegant design. The excellent condition, all year round, is ideal for low scoring.

Alto Golf The last course designed by Sir Henry Cotton, a challenging course for all levels of player, but most suited to the mid to low handicapper. This long course has gently rolling fairways with scenic views of the Monchique Mountains and the Algarve countryside with occasional sea glimpses of Lagos Bay. The fairways are in good condition, and the greens are excellent, most well guarded by strategically placed bunkers.
